Dear islands trust,

My family purchased property on Lasqueti Island and has lived here for over 100 years. We didn't steal land from the native population. We paid for it. My grandparents worked in harmony with Lasquetians then, as we do today. As a girl I remember how we valued the local grandmas who would go outside into the woods to pick plants, roots and other things to make healing poultices for injuries or teas to help somebody feel better, prevent miscarriages, ease pregnancies and stop pain. My only regret was that I didn't study under their wings and learn more of what they seemed to know instinctively.

Canadians are being taught to feel guilty about how we treat indigenous people. We are all still learning how to trust, love and help each other. Islands Trust Policy Statement seems to be setting things up so that we will give up our individual property rights to Islands Trust who is pretending to recognize that we stole the land from the local settlers. This is hogwash. It is obvious that Islands Trust has become involved with UN Agenda 21 and is mis-using the native population to break down Canadian economy to achieve collaboration with the United Nations travesties.

Putting us all into slavery is not the new normal. It is the United Nations action plan of the last few decades to reorganize everything into the “common good”. So now you are calling it “Islands 2050: The Future of the Trust Area”, right? I am pretty sure you are copying the United Nations info on the 3 pillars, where you weave together economics, ecology and social equity. This is the UN precursor to thinking globally, planning regionally and acting locally. What else are you calling it nowadays?

The Agenda 21 manual, when it first came out was called “Growing Smart: Legislation Guidebook with Model Statutes for Planning and the Management of Change”. There are other United Nations protocol books that have been distributed internationally. What are they called in Canada? There are even childrens’ books to educate our children to saving the world the United Nations way. It is obvious you, Islands Trust, are implementing this nonsense?

Wake up!

You are setting Islands Trust up to be concocting “redevelopment” into a partnership with a global shadow UN government that uses peer pressure to neutralize any opposition to its agenda. I did not vote you in for this. Redevelopment is part of United Nations Agenda 21 and will bring loss of sovereignty to all people. Stop now! It’s almost too late.

Yours in unity consciousness,

Nikki Darwin
